

Κρι-Κρι / kri-kri/ Kri-Kri (wildgoat)

1. What does it look like?

The kri-kri has light brown fur with a darker stripe around his neck. The male has large horns up to 1 meter long, which are directed backwards. The female has a small body, less hair and smaller horns than the male.

2. Where does it live?

Crete is a big island in the south of Greece. The wildgoat of Crete, the so-called Kri-Kri, lives only in Crete and three small islands near it. It is found on steep cliffs and gorges.

3. What does it eat?

It is a herbivore animal and eats only grass and tree leaves or bushes.

4. Other facts

- The Greek mythology says that a female Kri-Kri fed god Zeus.
- It can jump up to 8 metres long distance.

